

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Fellow citizens of the Senate, and House of Representatives:

That is a wise provision of our fundamental law, which requires that the Representatives should meet at a fixed period each year, and consult together for the common good. In older states than ours, even, and in other and less changeful times, such a measure is full of wisdom. A general knowledge of the condition of public affairs is thus brought within the grasp of all. That tendency to abuse, to which all things human are subject, is thus placed, periodically, within the power of control; and the frequent recurrence to fundamental principles which such annual meetings of the chosen agents of the people naturally invites, tends eminently to secure the efficacy and preserve the purity of the government. But here, in a new country like ours, not yet reclaimed from its wilderness condition, where our local institutions have already proved imperfect and inadequate; where new interests are constantly arising to be protected and advanced; where new difficulties are occurring, to be obviated and overcome, and evils of an extraordinary character, both local and national, are pressing heavily upon us, such a provision seems indispensable. In an age like this, especially, so strongly marked by its love of change, by its novel experiments, its fanciful theories, and its fearful hypothesis, how eminently necessary it is, that the people, in the persons of their selected and honored agents, should be thus called together, that they may interchange their opinions, and deliberate and act for the common good; that they may cautiously review the condition of our public affairs; that they may correct whatever may tend to evil in our existing establishments, and that they may devise the most appropriate means by which to elevate the character, promote the happiness, and foster and protect the best interests of the country!

Such are the benign purposes, gentlemen, for which you are now called together by our organic law. To aid you, in whatsoever degree it may please God to enable me to do in the attainment of purposes so beneficent, and so imposing, I also am honored by the commands of our common constituents. I approach this new theatre of action with promptitude, for such is my duty—but oppressed, as I feel myself, by the variety and importance of the obligations imposed upon me; by the responsibilities to God and to my country, which I thus assume, I approach it with that deep humility which becomes the occasion. Our fellow-citizens have confided in my honesty of purpose, gentlemen, and in yours. They have trusted in our energy, in our prudence, and in our wisdom; and thus confiding, they have placed, for a time, in our hands, the character, the well-being, and under the providence of God, the destinies of our young and interesting state. But generous and confiding as they are, they nevertheless expect much from us—and, for good or for evil, grave and lasting consequences will be anticipated from the manner in which we shall acquit ourselves of this high trust. Let us commence our interesting work, then, with a due sense of its importance—let us suppress all such local partialities and party animosities, as may seem unfriendly to the common good—and each in our prescribed sphere, and invoking the blessing of Providence upon our labors, with singleness of heart, seek to advance the moral and political prosperity of our common country.

It is a country dear to us all! and while we humble ourselves before the power of the merciful Ruler of all things, and, in sorrow, confess that the many evils, which, as a people and a nation, we endure, are brought upon us by our folly, fool-hardiness and sin, let us not cease to be grateful, for that our lot has been cast in so fair a land, for that the benefits of christianity have been spread far and wide among us, that health has dwelt in our habitations, that our harvests have been gathered in so rich abundance, and that we are permitted to "sit down and reason together" concerning the improvement of the social, moral, and political institutions of the country, while peace and plenty rest upon our borders, and there are none to make us afraid. I am aware, gentlemen, that in its apportionment of powers, the constitution has not assigned it to the executive department to participate, directly, in the discussions, which may be incident to the business of legislation. To the matured wisdom and prudence of the Senate and House, it is peculiarly given, to settle as well the principles, as the details of all bills which may be before you; yet, to a certain extent, the Governor is also identified with your enactments, and his concurrence made necessary. The general remarks I have ventured to submit then, will not I hope be deemed obtrusive nor unwarrantable. The Governor, among other enumerated duties, is required to communicate to you "the condition of the State," and to recommend to you such measures "as he shall deem expedient." The circumstances under which I meet you, will render it impossible for me, at the outset, to acquit myself of either branch of this study, in any but a very imperfect manner. The true condition of the state can be ascertained only, as to most particulars at least, through information obtained from its principal officers, followed, perhaps, by a laborious examination of their respective departments. A demand for such information and scrutiny, would be sanctioned, only, on the part of the constituted and recognized organs of the State; in me hitherto, it would have been unauthorized and obtrusive. I must then obey the dictates of circumstances, and while I reserve for future and occasional communications, more exact views of the actual posture of our public affairs, and the recommendation of such specific measures as may be deemed appropriate. I must, at the moment of my induction, restrict myself to submit to considerations of a general character. These I am ready to submit to you whenever you may be pleased to receive them. They may appear to you imperfect in conception, as they are deficient in detail. Without any official facilities, I could hardly hope to have made them so. But I have the consolation to remember, that while in the reports required by law to be made to you, you will find certainly substituted for conjecture, so, in the resources of your own intelligence and sound judgment, you will find an ample corrective for any crude thoughts or fallacies of mine.

There is, after all, gentlemen, an invisible hand which overrules the councils and conducts the affairs of men; with Him, the wisdom of man is as foolishness; but with his benediction upon our labors, which we ought humbly and fervently to implore, we may well hope that our efforts to ameliorate the condition and advance the best happiness of our country, may be crowned with signal success.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. McClelland, of the House of Representatives, moved the adoption of the joint rules of the two houses until otherwise ordered.

Senator Hawkins moved to lay the resolution upon the table, which was adopted.

The convention then, on motion of Mr. Trowbridge, adjourned sine die.

On motion of Mr. McReynolds,

Messrs. Renwick and Brown were appointed a committee to conduct the Speaker to the chair, upon reaching which, the Speaker addressed the House as follows :

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives :

It is with no ordinary feeling of emotion that I enter upon the discharge of the responsible and arduous duties of Speaker of the House. We have come together, gentlemen, at a time when distress and great pecuniary embarrassment afflicts every part of our common country. The eyes of our constituents are turned upon us. Our action is looked for with intense anxiety. And we, gentlemen, shall disappoint public expectation, unless, in the spirit with which we have come together, we shall at once enter upon the discharge, and faithfully execute the duties upon which we have here assembled. The Chair can only say, that the duties devolving upon it, shall be discharged with all the ability it can command, with a devotion to the public interest and with an impartiality that it trusts will be appreciated. And, gentlemen, if I should not succeed in discharging satisfactorily the important duties of this honorable station, I have the satisfaction left me, of knowing that I have not sought its responsibilities or its honors. Upon your part, gentlemen, it is a free offering, and I accept in the spirit with which it is tendered, and I thank you, gentlemen, for this expression of your confidence. And, gentlemen, if I shall succeed in discharging, to your satisfaction, and with advantage to the public interest, the duties of this Chair, it will be for the reason that you extend to me your kind indulgence and generous aid. From the want of legislative experience, I shall need and shall expect your utmost forbearance; and should errors occur in the administration of your rules, or in the discharge of any of the duties that I shall be called upon to discharge, I cannot but believe that they will be attributed to the judgment rather than a wish to offend.

On motion of Mr. Turner,

The Speaker announced a special message from the Executive, by L. Bruce, Esq., in the words following:

To the Senate and House of Representatives.

It has become my duty to request the early attention of the Legislature, to the condition of that very numerous class of our fellow citizens, who seem to have entered into contracts with the accredited agents of the state, for the furnishing of materials, or the performance of labor upon our public works, and who claim to be creditors.

The aggregate amount of the outstanding pecuniary liabilities already incurred in the prosecution of our gigantic project of internal improvement, can best be ascertained by a minute examination into all the operations of the commissioners and of the board.

If this aggregate amount should be found swollen beyond our present available means, I am persuaded that you will not the less think it a duty, gentlemen, to provide for its liquidation; nor would any unnecessary delay of payment, in cases where contracts have been entered into in perfect good faith, be justified, by imputing indiscretion or extravagance to our predecessors who may have authorized such accumulated liabilities. It is the public faith, which is pledged; and it is our constant duty to preserve the public faith inviolate. And as this, to the utmost extent possible, is our duty, so, I am sure, you will think it also, for our advantage. For "there is no truth more thoroughly established," (as our first, our greatest, and our best president has told us,) "than that there exists, in the economy of nature, an indissoluble union between virtue and happiness; between duty and advantage; between the genuine maxims of an honest and magnanimous policy, and the solid rewards of public prosperity and felicity." Feeling assured, gentlemen, that there can exist no difference of opinion, as to the justice of these sentiments, or the soundness of the policy which they indicate, I respectfully lay before you, herewith, a memorial of some of our fellow citizens, exhibiting the distressed condition in which they appear to have been placed by reason of an alleged failure on the part of the agents of the state, to comply with the pecuniary engagements made with the memorialists. Though addressed to the Governor, (who, without your aid, can furnish no relief,) yet I have considered it a duty, which both justice and sound policy enjoin, to submit it to you, for your more efficient consideration.

But while I commend this subject to your earnest attention, I would venture to suggest the expediency of a guarded caution; in any general act you may think it proper to pass, against the allowance of claims upon any contract, except such as may have been entered into in the most perfect good faith.

I again, also, respectfully ask your consideration of the propriety of abrogating, or at least of suspending, all existing authority, on the part of the commissioners of internal improvement, to enter into any new contract for the prosecution of the projected works, until ways and means to meet the exigency shall have been provided.

I avail myself of the occasion, to present for the consideration of both houses, a communication from the Secretary of State, concerning insurance upon the capitol and the state library, and submit the propriety of early attention upon the subject alluded to.

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE.

Executive Office, January 15, 1840.

Mr. Brown moved that the memorial be referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Mr. Bell moved its reference to the committee on claims; which motion prevailed; and

On motion of Mr. Champlin,

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

REPORTS.

Mr. Brown, from the committee on the militia, to whom was referred the petition of the Brady Guards, reported "A bill for the independent organization of the military corps called the Brady Guards," which was laid upon the table and ordered printed.

Mr. Harbaugh, from the select committee to whom was referred the joint resolution from the Senate respecting the "currency and the recent suspension of specie payments," reported the same back to the House with amendments, which was placed on the general order.

Mr. Harbaugh, chairman of the committee on banks and incorporations, to whom was referred the resolution instructing them to inquire into "the expediency of abolishing the safety fund system of banking in this state," at the request of the mover of said resolution, reported the same back to the House, and asked to be discharged from the further consideration of the subject. The report was accepted, and the committee discharged from the further consideration thereof.

Mr. Harbaugh, from the judiciary committee, reported "A bill to provide for filing chattel mortgages, and bills of sale of goods and chattels," which was read twice and placed upon the general order.

Mr. Fuller, from the committee on printing, made the following report in pursuance of a resolution instructing them "to inquire of the different printers of the city of Detroit, as to their respective prices, &c., to do, during the present session, the printing of the House of Representatives:"

The committee to whom was referred the resolution instructing them to inquire of the different printers of this city, the prices for which they will do the printing of this House during its present session, and their opinion of the ability of each one to perform the labor, report, that they have made the inquiries which they were directed to make, by the resolution, and have received written answers from Messrs. Dawson & Bates, E. A. Theller, John S. Bagg, Cornelius Wendell and E. J. Roberts, of which the following is an abstract:

The terms of Messrs. Dawson & Bates, are

53 cents per thousand ems for composition,

55 " per token for press work.

Of E. A. Theller,

45 cents per thousand ems for composition,

55 " per token for press work.

Of Cornelius Wendell,

40 cents per thousand ems for composition,

40 " per token for press work; paper at market price.

Of E. J. Roberts,

50 per cent less than the established price by the law of 1839.

Mr. Bagg makes no definite proposals, but says he can do it cheaper than it can be done without loss, at any other office in the city. And that if it is to be let to the lowest bidder, he will do it, under the circumstances, at a very great reduction from the usual prices.

With regard to the ability of the above named gentlemen, to perform the contracts which they should enter into with the state, it is perhaps, needless to make any remarks or state any opinion, as all who have submitted any definite proposals, with the exception of Messrs. Dawson & Bates, who, no doubt would be prepared to do so, should it become necessary, would give such bonds to the state as should be required.

In concluding their report, your committee cannot refrain from the expression of the opinion, that a general law on this subject, by which some constitutional officer of government should be authorized, under proper rules and regulations, to procure the printing to be done for the state, would be attended with far less difficulty, embarrassment and expense, than to leave the matter as it now stands, at the disposal of the Legislature. The feverish agitation of this question, at every new session of the legislature, though it may afford a gratifying excitement to those who need that element of existence, making too heavy drafts on the purse of the state for the people to remain long satisfied with any thing short of a permanent legal disposition of the subject.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. L. FULLER,

Chairman of Committee on Printing.

Which report was ordered to lie upon the table.

Mr. Backus, from the judiciary committee, to whom was referred the petition of William Wolcott and J. Walker, asking the passage of an act empowering them to dispose of certain real estate belonging to William F. Wolcott, a minor; also a petition of Guy C. Merrill and Abraham Cahill, for similar power; also another petition of Seth Fletcher, for like powers, reported adverse to the prayer of the petitioners, and on his motion, was discharged from the further consideration of the same.

On motion of Mr. Renwick.

The report was ordered printed.

(See House Document No. 13.)

Mr. Turner, from the committee on enrolment, reported as correctly enrolled, a "Resolution relative to State Printer."

The Speaker announced the following message from the Senate, by their Secretary, D. W. Kellogg, Esq.:

Mr. Backus offered the following joint resolution, and on his motion, the rule was suspended, and the resolution passed :

Whereas, by a joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, George Dawson has been appointed State Printer in the place of John S. Bagg; and whereas, many publications of notices required by law to be published in the state paper, have already been put in progress of publication in the Free Press, the state paper published by John S. Bagg, and no provision is made in said joint resolution for preserving or providing for rendering effectual such publication of notices as have already been commenced; therefore,

Resolved by the House, (the Senate concurring,) That all notices, by law, required to be published in the state paper, which have already been commenced, shall be continued in the paper in which the same were commenced, although the state paper may be changed, and be as good and effectual as if the same paper continued to be the state paper.

On motion of Mr. Renwick,

Resolved, That the committee on education, be instructed to inquire into the expediency of repealing the joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives of this state, approved March 30, 1838, authorizing the superintendent of public instruction, to furnish the Journal of Education to the inspectors of primary schools, and each of the district boards in this state, and to deduct the amount of subscription for said copies from the moneys to be apportioned to each town and district, and report the result of their deliberations by resolution or otherwise.

Mr. McReynolds laid upon the table the following joint resolution:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That Henry K. Sanger, cashier of the Bank of Michigan, be, and he is hereby appointed fiscal agent of this Legislature.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Mr. Renwick called up for consideration his joint resolution of the 11th instant, relating to the suspension of the works of internal improvement, and the appraisal of damages on the same.

Mr. Hammond offered the following:

Resolved, That the clerk of the House be required to furnish a copy of the resolution to the commissioners of internal improvement, requiring them to report to this House without delay, to what extent the resolution will interfere with the public works, and in the mean time the resolution to lay upon the table.

Mr. Larue offered the following as a substitute for the amendment, which was lost:

The Chair deciding that a similar amendment had been already rejected by the House, it was withdrawn.

Mr. Harbaugh offered the following amendment:

"Except to make all necessary repairs upon that portion of the Central railroad, lying between Detroit and Ann Arbor."

The Chair deciding that a similar amendment to this had been already rejected, it also was withdrawn.

Resolved, by the House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That taking into consideration the large amount of money necessary for the support of the officers of the state government, and their immediate wants, and also in view of the fact that they receive from three to six dollars per day for their services, it becomes this legislature to look well to the means requisite for such payment, and adding to the above reasons, one more for the purpose of making the course of this House more clear, viz: the present indebtedness of the treasury, which, it is presumed, is in the hands of wealthy men, or more wealthy corporations, thereby making it imperative on this House, to provide for the payment thereof. That this House will not recognize the claim of such men as have no other means of support than the labor of their hands, and who have, with a most reckless disregard of their interest and duties, confined themselves for about the space of one year as guards of the state prison, without any remuneration for the same, and moreover specifying and agreeing to receive only one dollar and twenty-five cents per day for such services, and that all future legislation on the part of this House be in reference to the foregoing resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That the agent of said prison be directed to use his utmost endeavors to persuade the prisoners now confined in said prison to remain at said prison without the help of guards, and also that the said prisoners be required to board themselves.

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE.

Executive Office, January 23, 1840.

RESOLUTIONS AND NOTICES.

Mr. Backus laid upon the table the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, the wise policy of all republics, and especially of the founders of ours, has been to place the public treasure beyond the control of the Executive, except under special appropriations by law; and

Whereas, the public money is the common property of the nation, the beneficial use of which, under proper regulations, is the common right of all the citizens, until the public necessities require its immediate appropriation to public objects under the direction of the Congress of the United States; and

Whereas, a bill entitled, "An act to provide for the collection, safe-keeping, transfer and disbursement of the public money," commonly known and called the sub-treasury bill, has been again introduced into the Congress of the United States; and

Whereas, the sub-treasury system, so called, as contemplated by said bill, if the same should become a law, will prevent an equal distribution of the benefits of the common treasure of the nation, confine its benefits to a comparatively few office holders engaged in its collection, keeping and disbursement, and their immediate dependents and friends, and greatly increase the already dangerous encroachments of executive power and patronage upon the constitutional rights of the people of the Union; and

Whereas, large portions of the public revenue have been purloined by absconding sub-treasurers under the practical operation of the sub-treasury system, to the great damage of the nation and its finances; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, That the sub-treasury bill, so called, now pending before the Congress of the United States, ought not to become a law, and all good citizens are called upon, by all proper means, to defeat it, as a measure dangerous to the liberties of the people.

Resolved, That the sub-treasury system, as a measure of finance, is not only inexpedient, but unsafe, and contrary to the genius of our institutions—that as a measure of policy, it will further derange and destroy the finances of the country, cripple agriculture, commerce and the arts, and concentrate the available wealth of the nation in the coffers of the Executive and his dependents.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to forward copies of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to each of our Senators and Representative in Congress, as the sense of this Legislature.

On motion of Mr. Hammond, the same was ordered printed.

Mr. Backus gave notice, that at some future day, he should ask leave to introduce a bill to provide for the collection of a specific state tax, so called, within the county of Wayne, and for the appointment of an officer to collect the same.

Mr. Harbaugh gave notice, that at some future day, he would ask leave to bring in a bill to authorize the appointment of commissioners to take acknowledgment of deeds and instruments of writing under seal.

On motion of Mr. Backus,

Resolved, That the committee on the judiciary be instructed to inquire into the expediency of providing by law, for the settlement of disputes in relation to water powers between tenants in common, and joint tenants, and for making partition between them.

Resolved, That the committee on the judiciary be instructed to inquire what further legislation, if any, is necessary to render the map of private claims, of Aaron Greenly, evidence in courts of law and equity.

Mr. Kenny laid upon the table the following:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That the supervisors of the several towns in this state, be required, on or before the first day of October next, to transmit to the county clerk of their respective counties, the number (if any) of lunatic or insane persons in their respective towns, noting the age, sex, married or single, mildness or violence of the malady, ostensible means of support, by self or friends, or ability to furnish or procure necessary at-

Mr. McClelland moved that the respondent reply instant to the charges preferred against him, which motion prevailed, and, after some remarks upon the case from Jacob M. Howard, Esq., counsel for the respondent, he read the following affidavit of Mr. Daniels:

State of Michigan, Wayne County, ss.

I, Nathaniel I. Daniels, recording clerk of the House of Representatives, now in session, being duly sworn, say, that on the third day of February inst., I was taken into custody by the sergeant-at-arms of the House, by virtue of a warrant signed by the Honorable Speaker, for the purpose of bringing me to the bar of the House, "pursuant to a resolution adopted by the House of Representatives, February 3, 1840, to answer to certain charges preferred against me by a member thereof."

Without yielding any legal objections which I may have to the proceedings, and without admitting the authority of the House to arrest and punish, except in the cases particularly specified in the laws of the state, I respectfully further state, for the information of the House, that on Saturday the first of February inst., while within the bar, and having at the moment little to occupy my attention, save a good humored and facetious conversation with a friend or two who were then sitting within the bar, on the subject of reform and retrenchment, I wrote, or rather scribbled on a small piece of paper that happened to be before me, the words appearing on the document, which was the foundation of the resolution submitted by the Honorable member from Mackinac on that day, and passed on Monday the 3rd inst., in relation, as I presume, to this subject. This paper was intended and received at the time as a mere joke, and was suggested by some remarks that passed between myself and friends at the moment, on the subject above alluded to. Having written it, I fixed it, as I then supposed, on the table of Mr. Ingalls, a member from Oakland county, and a personal acquaintance, merely for the purpose of exciting his mirth, not supposing there was, in reality, any reason whatever for the caution it contained. But through a mistake, I attached it to the table of the Honorable member from Mackinac, with whom then, I had no acquaintance. And I further say, and declare on my oath, that in all this I intended not the least disrespect to this House, to any member thereof, or to any person invited by them within the bar.

N. I. DANIELS.

Sworn and subscribed before me, this 4th day of February, A. D., 1840.

THEO. WILLIAMS.

Justice of the Peace, Wayne County.

Mr. Foote then offered the following resolution, which was supported by Mr. Turner, and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the affidavit just read before the House, submitted by Nathaniel I. Daniels, the recording clerk thereof, and respondent at the bar, is satisfactory and conclusive evidence to this House, that no disrespect was intended to it, or to any member thereof, and that he be forthwith discharged from custody.

Prayer, and other religious services, by the Rt. Rev. Bishop McCoskry.

After which, the Hon. David E. Brown delivered the following eulogy over the remains of the Hon. ISAAC G. BAILEY, in presence of the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives.

Senators and Representatives:

The purest feelings of our nature sanctify the custom which renders it proper, upon all solemn occasions like the present, to offer the heart-felt tribute of grateful remembrance and respect to a departed friend. Notwithstanding all the fortitude with which philosophy may endue the human heart; yet, when the unerring shaft of death strikes down the associate, companion and friend, who so lately stood beside us in the pride and power of manhood, callous must be the breast and cold the heart, that can behold the scene unmoved.

We are here assembled to discharge the last offices of friendship to one of our number—to commit to the grave a valuable member of our body, on whose cheek as but yesterday sat a promise of long health, and whose manly form seemed built to bear the weight of many years; one who gave early and abundant token that his future life would have been as useful to the state as his past had been prosperous to himself and the happy circle around him. “But he shall return no more to his house, neither shall his place know him any more.” The gentle suavity of his amiable manners, shall no longer entice our affections, and lead us to gather around him. His intelligence shall not again invite and captivate the attentive ear, nor shall the dignified tenor of his honorable character, excite our future admiration.

To enfold departed worth in its burial sheets, and bend the knee over the grave of those we have loved and admired, is an interesting and solemn duty. It improves, chastens and exalts the heart. It brings up to memory, the mournful reality, that man is the child of doubt and danger—that the spectre of uncertainty bends over his cradled slumbers, darkens the warm noon of his manhood, and extends its dusky arm over the evening of his decline—that to-day he may walk forth in his majesty, the image of God and the lord of creation—to-morrow the mysterious fire of his existence be extinguished, and the cold clod press upon his colder bosom.

“No age is free from Death’s insatiate bow,
His shafts are levelled and his victims fall,
The age of infancy, or four-score snow,
Alike, avail not—he must conquer all!”

The inanimate body which now lies enshrouded before us, was, no longer than four days since, occupying yon vacant chair, redolent with life and the picture of youthful health and happiness. Yesterday Death came among us, and wisdom, strength and beauty crumbled, shrank and faded before him; and he—than whom there was not one amongst us more earnest to serve his state and his country; to promote the purity, give new vigor and energy to our institutions and add new lustre to growing Michigan—was the victim.

Gentlemen! to me, whom you have honored with the painful duty of rendering in words, the last tribute of our respect for the deceased, the subject is one of deep interest, and I confess myself unequal to the task of doing it justice. Intimate as we were, and interested as we mutually felt for each others prosperity and happiness, I am unable to afford you all the statistical information I should be glad to, connected with his brief career. But, ISAAC G. BAILEY was the architect of his own fortune, and his unsullied name. Genealogy we do not trace. The youth, who early leaves the home of his father, and rushes afar into the wilderness for fame, for fortune and happiness, seldom carries with him a voucher, and if he goes thus forth with an honest heart, he never needs one. He hews down the forest, sows and reaps, and earns, by the sweat of his brow, the most honorable appellation that can be bestowed upon man.

So, with Mr. Bailey. He was born in New London, in the State of Connecticut—emigrated to Michigan some ten years since—pursued the honorable occupation of a cultivator of the soil, and has well earned the appellation of a pioneer of our young state. By his enterprise, industry, intelligence, and general correctness of deportment, he had won the confidence and esteem of his fellow men—endeared himself to a numerous circle of connections and friends, and earned his way to the elevated position he held in this hall! a representative of the sovereign people! when not yet thirty years of age. Blest, moreover, with a reasonable competence of this world's wealth, and doubly blest in the calm enjoyment of the affection of that companion with whom he had chosen to make the journey of life, he doubtless confidently anticipated many days of happiness and usefulness in store for him. But, alas! he is suddenly taken from us, in the midst of his sanguine hopes and of the board of internal improvements, relative to the indebtedness of the state to contractors on the several works of internal improvement, which,

On motion of Mr. Harbaugh, was laid upon the table and ordered printed.

(See House Document No. 33.)

Mr. Harbaugh, from the committee on the judiciary, to whom was referred the petition of sundry citizens of the township of Alpina, Van Buren county, praying an alteration of the name of said township, reported the same back to the House, and asked to be discharged from its further consideration; and the same,

On motion of Mr. Coleman, was referred to the committee on towns and counties.

Also, reported back to the House, the petition of sundry citizens of Lawrence township, Van Buren county, relative to the collection of unpaid highway taxes, as the same is being provided for by a bill now pending before the House.

And the committee was discharged from its further consideration.

The Chair announced a communication from the board of internal improvements, relative to the contract for carrying the mail on the Central railroad; which,

Was, with the accompanying document, laid upon the table and ordered to be printed.

Whereas, the government of the United States is of limited and express powers, granted by the people and the states respectively; and,

Whereas, the creation of a corporation, according to the opinion of Chief Justice Marshall, is the exercise of sovereign power; and,

Whereas, in the enumeration of the powers of Congress of the United States, as contained in section eight of article one of the constitution, there is contained no express grant of the sovereign power of creating a bank of the United States, and doubt has been, and still is, entertained by eminent statesmen and jurists of the constitutionality of the act of Congress establishing the late bank of the United States; and

Whereas, a territorial government has been declared by Chief Justice Marshall, to be a corporation, created by Congress, and subordinate thereto; and that consequently it would seem questionable whether the legislative council of the late territorial government of Michigan was invested with the constitutional power of creating and chartering banks; being a legislature of derivative and subordinate authority, the creature of congressional enactment, and of minor powers than the national legislature; and

Whereas, it is deeply interesting to the people of this state, that their money should, at all times, be intrusted in legal and safe depositories; therefore,

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That the judiciary committee be, and they are hereby instructed to inquire into the following points, viz:

First. The validity, under the constitution of the United States, of the bank charters granted by the legislative council of the late territory of Michigan.

Second. If the charters of said banks are violated by the fact of their suspending specie payments and issuing post notes; and if so, what legislative action is necessary to renew and revive those charters, and legalize their past transactions; and report as soon as possible to this House.

Mr. Turner submitted the following resolution, which was laid on the table:

Resolved, That an additional enrolling clerk for this House, be employed during the remainder of the present session, and that he be paid for his services at the same rate as the clerks of this House are paid; and that the committee on enrolment be authorized to appoint said additional clerk.

And whereas, by the constitution of the United States, this high and salutary power is vested in the general government, by which that government is authorized to establish an uniform system of laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States, according to the dictates of moral right and natural justice to the unfortunate bankrupt, without any of the artificial restraints imposed by the paramount rules of the constitution of the several states or the United States:

And whereas, any system of bankruptcy that should be adopted by any of the states of the Union, adequate for the present exigencies of the country, and its citizens, would be obnoxious to constitutional objections of a decisive character, and wholly fail of any salutary effect intended by such system; therefore, be it

On motion of Mr. Bush,

The ninth section of said bill was amended in the fifth line, after the word "committed," by inserting the following: "he may, if required to be tried by the next circuit court, have that privilege, and in such case, if he neglect or refuse to give bail, be committed to prison until he shall be brought before the circuit court." The bill was then ordered engrossed for a third reading.

The Chair announced the following message from the Executive.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I have this day approved, signed and deposited in the office of the Secretary of State, an act entitled "An act to establish a district court within the county of Wayne."

The above mentioned act, having now received the constitutional sanction of the different departments of the Legislature, a case is presented which is perhaps not free of doubt, as to the time and manner in which the incumbent of the office, provided for by this act, is to be appointed.

It will be in the recollection of the Senate and of the House, that by a provision contained in the revised code, no legislative act can be of force until the thirtieth day after its approval, unless a different day be named in the act itself, when it may be the pleasure of the Legislature that it should be of force.

If such be the general rule applicable to the case, then it may result, that no appointment of the judge in the act provided for, can be made during the present session of the Legislature, for the proposition would hardly be sustained, that a nomination could be made or confirmed by the Senate, for an office, which in contemplation of law, does not exist.

The resulting consequence would then be, either that the beneficial operation of the whole act might remain suspended for nearly an entire year, or resort must be had to an executive appointment in the recess of the legislature. How far it may be competent for the Governor to make an original appointment of an incumbent of such an office, as if it were a vacancy occurring in the recess of the legislature, "by death, resignation or removal," I have not deemed it necessary for me as yet to consider; for I should hold it more desirable, (if such should be the pleasure of the Senate,) that in respect to an office of so much importance to the community, a permanent appointment should be in the first place made. With this view, I respectfully submit for the consideration of both Houses, the propriety of passing a supplementary law, providing, that so far as regards the nomination and appointment of the judge in the act mentioned, the act in question do come into operation and be of force, forthwith.

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE.

And whereas, the county of Kalamazoo has been charged, by the Auditor General, with the state tax for the said year 1838, on the said lands so assessed and taxed in the county of Barry, and has also assumed and paid to the several townships in the said county of Barry, the township taxes to which they were severally entitled;

On motion of Mr. Underwood, section fifteen was amended by striking out all after the word "legislature," and

On motion of Mr. Davis, the bill was laid upon the table.

The Chair announced the following message from the Executive accompanied by the "Bill to abolish the office of State Printer," which he returned without his signature, by Mr. Bruce, his private secretary:

To the House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN—In accordance with the provision of the constitution, I return to "the house in which it originated," the bill entitled "An act to abolish the office of State Printer, and for other purposes," without my signature.

First. The first objection which I find it difficult to overcome, consists in the belief, that it is not expedient that the legislature should place beyond its control and proper supervision, the whole of the public printing and work connected with it, for so long a period as two years from July next. To attempt thus practically to tie the hands of future legislatures, in relation to a matter of so much practical importance to the people, is, in itself objectionable, even if it were free of doubt, as to our competency to do so. But the deranged state of the currency of the country, and the continued and successive changes in the relative prices of materials and labor, consequent upon it, must render it impossible to determine, by the relative value of money this year, what may be a fair and reasonable compensation for the next. I object then to so much of the bill as purports to confer upon the officers of the government indicated, the power and the duty to contract for all the public printing and binding, necessary to be done for the legislature, and for all the departments of government, for a period so long as two years from and after the first day of July, 1840.

Second. The constitution requires "that each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same, &c." I consequently feel myself authorized, and perhaps bound, to notice the facts which it exhibits. By a reference to the journal of the Senate, of the third and fourth days of February, instant, I find that a contract has been authorized and consummated by the Senate for performing a part of the public printing during the current year. The bill purports to require the officers indicated, to contract for the whole of the public printing, by a clause universal in its terms, and containing no proviso, exception or saving, in regard to that part of the public printing, which had been already contracted for. So far as I have means of knowledge, this contract appears to have been entered into in good faith, and was sanctioned by the law of April 10, 1839. If so, it is morally binding over all private contracts, the constitution throws its mantle. Their obligations should never be impaired. Last and least of all, should the authorities of the state set the pernicious example. I know this Legislature could never intend to do so; it may have been supposed that the contract alluded to was founded in mistake—it may have contained a reservation of power; of these things I am ignorant, nor can I judge. The journal entries furnish at once, the source and limit of my information; seeing them, am I not bound by them, looking no further?

It is with deep reluctance then, that I feel myself inhibited from affixing my signature to the bill, because its ostensible tendency is to infringe a principle of the constitution, which should be holden inviolate.

I am decidedly of the opinion that the office of State Printer ought, in this state, to be abrogated, such an establishment is not here indispensable, and it tends to an unjust monopoly, it deprives the state of the benefit of fair and honorable competition; past experience, and the observation of other times and countries, may well admonish us that the influences of such an office are not of the most favorable character in our communities. But notwithstanding, my opinion as to the general expediency of abrogating the office, I feel constrained to withhold my assent from a bill which contains features, which seem to me, still more objectionable than those of the existing law. It will now be again referred to the wisdom of the Legislature as to the expediency of passing it in its present or in a modified shape.

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE.

Executive Office, February 28, 1840.

Mr. Harbaugh moved that the vote on the passage of said bill be re-considered.

And on his motion, the motion to re-consider was laid upon the table.

Mr. McClelland moved that the message be laid upon the table, and that three hundred copies of the same be ordered printed.

A division of the question being ordered, the motion to lay upon the table prevailed.

The bill being under consideration, Mr. Fuller moved to amend by striking out all after the enacting clause, and offered the following, as a substitute for the same:

Whereas, The claims of settlers on the university lands of this state, for indemnity for expenses they have incurred for improvements made on such lands, or for the purchase of such lands under some liberal provision of the Legislature, is a subject of deep and abiding interest with that portion of the citizens of this state, and one well deserving legislative consideration; and whereas, the subject is of too grave an import for legislative action, without well authenticated facts on which to predicate such action; and whereas, the evidences justifying those claims are various and doubtful:

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That three commissioners be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, whose duty it shall be to proceed to those sections of the state where settlers on university lands are located, and determine by such evidences as shall be satisfactory to them, the quantity of lands located, at what time the settlers located on their respective lands, the number of acres under improvement, and the value of buildings and other improvements they have respectively, and report thereon, together with such other matters as may seem to them relevant to the subject, to the next legislature, with a view to a definite action by such legislature; Provided, That until such definite action shall be had by the Legislature, it shall be the duty of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and he is hereby required to reserve from sale, all university lands which are now settled on by squatters.

settler for the same, so due him, for said improvement as aforesaid and estimated by said committee."

"Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the said regents of the university may examine into the situation of the aforesaid settlers, and pay them respectively such sum as said regents may think is justly due to each person on the same, either by leasing said lands, as provided in the first section of this act, or by paying them in any other way that they may think just and equitable, out of the funds of said university."

"Sec. 3. And the Auditor General, Secretary of State, and Treasurer of this state, are hereby authorized and required to appoint three commissioners, whose duty it shall be to appraise the improvements made by settlers upon lands located for state purposes; and the same proceedings shall be had by the officers in this section, in settling and adjusting the same, as is required to be performed in the two first sections of this act, and the sums so found due to said settlers, if not paid by leasing said lands to said settlers, shall be audited and allowed, and paid by the Treasurer of this state, out of any moneys in the treasury, belonging to the common funds of this state."

Mr. McClelland moved to amend by striking out the words “of the Senate,” and insert in lieu thereof, the words “of both branches of the Legislature;” which motion prevailed.

The question recurring upon the adoption of the substitute as amended, it was adopted.

Mr. Backus moved to amend the tenth section, by adding the following, which was adopted:

“And if said settlers, or any of them, or their agents or servants, shall, during the continuance of the term of years for which they shall elect to hold said land in compensation for their improvements aforesaid, shall commit any waste or other injury to said lands, they shall forfeit all claims to said land and term of years therein, the same shall revert to the state free from all incumbrance.”

Whereas, The prices now paid for the printing of all laws and public documents, now being, or hereafter to be done, by virtue of the existing laws creating and providing for the duties of State Printer, is extravagant, and at much higher rates than is deemed full and ample compensation for the same: And

whereas, various and sundry reports and bills are now, and have been long before both Houses of this Legislature, without any definite action being had thereon, or any favorable prospects of an immediate action: And whereas, it is, and has been a well ascertained fact, that the present incumbent can well and truly execute such printing at a much lower rate than he is now being paid for the same: And whereas, strict principles of retrenchment and economy, as well as a due regard to the interests of this state, requires at our hands that some prompt measures be adopted to put a stop to the payment of the existing established extravagant prices, if not by definite action, at least temporarily, until such definite action can be had; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That the prices paid, or to be paid, in all cases, for printing done, or to be done, for either House of this Legislature, as well as all other printing done for or in behalf of this state, shall not exceed fifty cents per thousand ems for composition, and fifty-two cents per token for press work, until otherwise ordered; and that all conflicting parts or features of any existing law in contravention of the provisions of this resolution be, and the same is hereby repealed.

SENATE CHAMBER,
Tuesday, March 10, 1840. }

To the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

SIR—I am instructed by the Senate, to return the “Bill to incorporate the Marshall mutual insurance company,” and the “Bill to extend the powers of county commissioners,” &c., with the amendments made to each by the House of Representatives, and respectfully inform you that the Senate do not concur in either of the amendments to said bills.

Also, further to inform you that the Senate have concurred in the amendments by the House to the “Bill relative to filing oaths of office, and bonds of certain civil officers,” and passed the bill as amended.

And further, I return the “Bill to amend part three, title two, chapter five, of the revised statutes, entitled ‘of jurors,’” which the Senate have passed without amendment.

And on motion of Mr. McClelland,

The Chair announced the following message from the Executive, accompanied by the "Bill to provide for the collection of delinquent taxes in the county of Ottawa, and for other purposes," which he returned without his signature, by his private secretary, Langley Bruce, Esq.:

To the House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN—It is with much reluctance that I feel myself compelled from a sense of duty, to return to you, without approval, the bill entitled "An act to provide for the collection of delinquent taxes in the county of Ottawa, and for other purposes."

The first section of that bill purports to sanction and adopt, in gross, the returns of the overseer of highways for the district therein named, "of the delinquent resident and non-resident highway taxes for the year 1838," and to require that the collection of those taxes be coerced, any law to the contrary notwithstanding, according to the provisions of the act to extend the time for the collection of taxes for the year 1839, &c.

Whatever irregularities may have been committed in the operation, from the beginning, however unjust or illegal may have been the previous assessment, apportionment or return of these taxes, by this act, all is made good, and that without extending to those whose farms may be sacrificed in consequence of it, an opportunity to correct whatsoever may be unjust or oppressive in the transaction, nor even perhaps the power of remonstrating against such wrong, if it exist.

When taxes are assessed upon a scale of uniformity and equality, and by a standard of value which approaches to certainty, there would be less hazard of committing injustice by such retrospective acts. Though even in such cases I think retrospective acts of this character ought never to be passed except in cases of imperative necessity. Vested rights may be thus disturbed, and without intending it, gross injustice may be done. The common good and the rights of the citizens are always far better protected by laws altogether prospective and not retroactive in their operations. But in cases where there is no common standard by which to assess a tax, and no uniformity secured in its apportionment, but a broad authority is vested in a few individuals of any neighborhood, to assess and apportion, almost at their pleasure, local (as in the case of highways or school taxes,) a retrospective act, purporting to approve and confirm all which so have been done, I consider most highly dangerous to the safety of the citizens and to the honor of the state.

Taking these views of the subject, and so understanding the bearing of the act in question, the objection they imply seems to me imperatively to forbid my signature of the act.

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE.

I have deemed it inexpedient for me to act further on this subject until the pleasure of the Legislature may be made known to me.

I have no knowledge of the subject, either personally or officially, other than is contained in the accompanying documents; nor would any action, under circumstances, be proper on the part of any of the officers of the Executive government, until appropriate means were taken to establish the genuineness of the claim, and an appropriation made by law, to meet the exigency.

I commend the subject, respectfully, to the consideration of the Legislature.

REPORTS.

Mr. Harbaugh, from the majority of the select committee, to whom was referred the special message of the Governor, together with the documents and joint resolutions from the state of New Jersey, submitted the following preamble and joint resolutions:

Whereas, the state of New Jersey, in common with her sister states, became a party to the Union, created by the constitution of the United States, upon the express condition, that she should at all times be entitled to a representation in the Congress of the United States in proportion to her population, and by the laws passed in pursuance of that constitution, she is now entitled to six representatives:

And whereas, the constitution declares that the times, places and manner of holding elections for representatives to Congress, shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof, until Congress shall alter such regulations:

And whereas, five of the Representatives of the state of New Jersey, to the Congress of the United States, elected in accordance with the provisions of existing laws in that state, and bearing a commission granted by the Governor, under the great seal of the state, appeared at the time and place prescribed by law for the meeting of that Congress, and produced their commissions as such representatives, and claimed the right to unite with the representatives of other states of the Union in forming and organizing the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, and were prevented by the acts of a majority of those representatives from exercising that right, and are still excluded from any participation in their proceedings and deliberations; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That the acts of a portion of the representatives from the several states, by which five of the persons who were duly commissioned, under the great seal of the state of New Jersey, as her representatives in the twenty-sixth Congress of the United States, were prevented from exercising their rights, and performing their duties as such representatives, were not only a palpable violation of the constitution, and a gross outrage upon the rights of the people of New Jersey, but constitute a precedent replete with danger to the interest, safety and permanency of the Union.

Be it further resolved, That in the name and behalf of the people of the state of Michigan, we do hereby, most solemnly protest against these acts, as unconstitutional, unwarranted and unjust, and against the enactment of any laws, by the remaining representatives of the several states, until the people of New Jersey, through their duly commissioned representatives, shall have been restored to the rights of which they have been arbitrarily and wrongfully deprived.

Be it further resolved, That the governor of this state be requested to transmit copies of the foregoing resolutions to the Governor of the state of New Jersey, and also to our Senators and Representative in Congress, with a request that they will present the same to Congress.

Which were read the first and second times, referred to the committee of the whole and placed upon the general order.

REPORTS.

Mr. Howard, from the committee on internal improvement, to whom was referred Senate bill number seventy, "to alter the route of the Havre branch railroad, and for other purposes," reported the same back to the House with an amendment, which was referred to the committee of the whole and placed upon the general order.

Mr. Harbaugh, from the committee on banks and incorporations, to whom was referred a "Bill restricting the powers of sheriffs, and for other purposes."

Also, a "Bill to incorporate the stockholders of the Agricultural bank of Michigan," reported the same back to the House without amendment, which were severally referred to the committee of the whole and placed upon the general order.

Mr. Bell, from the minority of the select committee, to whom was referred the special message of the Governor, together with the documents and joint resolutions from the state of New Jersey, submitted the following preamble and joint resolutions:

Whereas, by the constitution of the United States the several states are empowered to prescribe and regulate the time, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives in the Congress of the United States; and the same instrument further provides that the Representatives from the several states, who compose the popular branch of the Congress, shall be elected by the people of those states;

And whereas, by a legislative enactment, in conformity to the powers above enumerated and confirmed by the constitution, the state of New Jersey did prescribe the time, places, and manner of holding elections for Representatives in Congress from that state;

And whereas, the people of the said state did, in obedience to the requirements of said enactment, elect by a majority of all the lawful votes of said state, Peter D. Vroom, William R. Cooper, Philemon Dickerson, Daniel B. Ryall, Joseph Kille, and Joseph F. Randolph, to represent them in the twenty sixth Congress of the United States;

And whereas, by the said enactment it is made the duty of the Governor and privy council of the said state of New Jersey to cast up the whole number of votes from the several counties for each candidate for representatives in Congress, and thereby determine the six persons who have the greatest number of votes from the whole state therefor; and more effectually to protect each and every township and county in said state from unlawful disfranchisement, by the neglect or fraud on the part of the returning officers of such town or county, the same enactment further requires the Governor, in all cases where certified list of the polls of said elections in any of said townships or counties, shall not have been returned by the same within a specified time, and before the Governor and privy council shall proceed to determine the result of said election, forthwith to cause an express to be sent for and procure the same at the expense of the state;

And whereas, the certified lists of the votes polled in the said state at the late election therein for representatives in Congress, received by the Governor and Privy Council, were not all true and correct lists; inasmuch as those from the counties of Cumberland and Middlesex were not full and complete, nor did they purport to be so; but in which the statements of the number of votes polled and given in two townships within said counties were omitted; thereby excluding six hundred and forty-six votes regularly polled in said townships;

And whereas, notwithstanding it was the imperative duty of the Governor of said state, under the requirements of its law, to cause to be procured from the aforesaid townships, failing to make returns therefrom, certified copies of the poll lists or statements of the number of votes given at said election therein, before he and the privy council could determine according to law the true result of said election; and notwithstanding also, that certificate copies of the poll lists and statements of all the votes polled at said election in said townships in default, duly and legally authenticated, were procured and presented to the said Governor and privy council; yet nevertheless, the said Governor and council did, in utter contempt, disregard, and in gross violation of a positive law of said state, refuse to receive the certified lists from said townships; but did reject the same, and then determined that it appeared to them that John B. Aycrigg, William Halstead, John P. B. Maxwell, Joseph F. Randolph, Charles C. Stratton and Thomas Jones Yorke were duly elected by the people of New Jersey, representatives from the said state in the Congress of the United States;

And whereas, it appears by a certificate of the secretary of state, of said state of New Jersey, subscribed by him officially, and duly authenticated by his seal of office thereunto attached, which, after declaring therein the whole number of votes polled in said state for all the candidates for representatives aforesaid, evident and manifest that the above mentioned persons, who were by the governor and privy council declared to be elected, did not receive a majority of the votes given for representatives aforesaid, and were consequently not elected as such, as the following extract from said certificate will show, viz: "It appears that at said election, Peter D. Vroom, William R. Cooper, Philemon Dickerson, Daniel B. Ryall, Joseph Kille and Joseph F. Randolph, received a majority of the whole number of votes given in the said state of New Jersey for representatives of the said state, in the House of Representatives of the twenty-sixth congress of the United States," and notwithstanding this official declaration of the said secretary of state, and the doubts entertained by the said governor himself, who, at the time of determining with the privy council, the result of said election, stated "that if through inadvertence or by design, any votes have not been returned by the clerks, it is in the power of the House of Representatives (of Congress,) in their discretion, to allow those votes, and give the seat to the person, who, with those votes, may be elected;"

and further, that "it is his earnest wish, that before that proper and constitutional tribunal for deciding the matter, each candidate may have the full benefit of every legal vote he may have received at the election," the said governor, nevertheless, did not perform the duty required of him by law, but in direction of the same, refused to commission or grant certificates of election to the representatives positively and lawfully elected by the majority of the electors of said state, but contrary to the true result of said election, and against the expressed will of the freemen of said state, as manifested at the ballot boxes, did give and grant commissions of election to five of the other opposing candidates, who were in the minority of the suffrages of the people;

And whereas, notwithstanding the wrongful and unjust granting of said commissions, although stamped with the "broad seal" of said state, five of the legally elected, but unlawfully disfranchised representatives of said state, with their commissions derived directly from the people, and the same solemnly authenticated with the broader seal of their approbation, with the firm determination to maintain the purity of elections, and the constitutional rights of themselves and of the people; and in obedience to their will, did appear in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States at the proper time, and presenting the evidence of their election and return in legal and proper form, claim their seats in said House, but were prevented from taking the same by the acts of five of the persons claiming and contesting the same, by virtue of the said commission, given and granted them by the governor as aforesaid, contrary to law, and in manifest violation of the rights of the people of said state;

And whereas, the House of Representatives in Congress, in the exercise of their proper constitutional right and privilege "to judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its members," did proceed through their standing committee on elections, to investigate, judge and determine which of the persons claiming and contesting their seats in said House, were duly elected and entitled to the same therein; and after the most patient, laborious and impartial investigation, and upon the same evidence which was presented before the said governor and privy council, the said committee did formally report to the said House "that it appears prima facie upon the evidence in the possession of the committee, Peter D. Vroom, Daniel B. Ryall, William R. Cooper, Philemon Dickerson and Joseph Kille, are the five of the ten individuals claiming seats from the state of New Jersey, who received the greatest number of lawful votes from the whole state for representatives in the Congress of the United States, at the election of 1839, in said state;

And whereas, the said House of Representatives did, upon the presentation of said report from said committee, accept, adopt and confirm the same, by admitting to their seats the said five individuals, who were by the arbitrary and unlawful acts of the Governor of New Jersey in danger of being excluded from the same, but who were duly and legally elected by the people of said state, by a large majority of the votes of the Representatives in said House; thereby triumphantly vindicating the just rights of the people, and rigidly rebuking the arbitrary encroachment thereon, even though the same is attempted by men in "high places;" therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That the act of the Governor of New Jersey, in granting commissions of election to five of the persons therein named, is a flagrant outrage upon the constitutional rights and privileges of the people of said state; is a positive violation of its legislative enactments, and which has had the effect of depriving for a time, the said state of the greater part of its constitutional representation in the popular branch of the national legislature.

And be it further resolved, That this Legislature, for and in behalf of the state of Michigan, and as a sister state, do therefore most solemnly protest against said act as an arbitrary assumption of power, as unconstitutional, unlawful, and an invasion of the rights and franchises of the people of said state of

New Jersey, and destructive of the fundamental principles of her institutions.

On motion of Mr. Harbaugh,

The preamble and joint resolutions were laid upon the table and ordered printed.

(See House Document No. 65.)

Mr. McClelland, from the judiciary committee, to whom was referred Senate bill "to amend chapter five, title four, part third of the revised statutes, 'relating to proceedings in replevin,'" reported the same back to the House, with sundry amendments, and recommended its passage; which was referred to the committee of the whole, and placed upon the general order.

Mr. Spencer, from the committee on university and school lands, to whom was referred the "resolutions of the county commissioners of the county of Washtenaw, requesting an alteration of the law in regard to the payment of interest on loans made by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to counties," reported adverse to the alteration of the law in regard to the same; and the committee were discharged from the further consideration of the subject.

Mr. Renwick, from the committee on ways and means, reported a bill entitled "A bill to provide for releasing to the counties of Michilimacinac and Chippewa, their proportion of state tax, for the years 1840 and 1841," which was twice read, referred to the committee of the whole, and placed upon the general order.

Mr. Backus, from the judiciary committee, to whom was referred Senate bill number sixty-eight, "relative to proceedings in chancery," reported the same back to the House without amendment; which was referred to the committee of the whole, and placed upon the general order.

Mr. Backus, from the same committee, reported a bill entitled a "Bill concerning bail," which was twice read, referred to the committee of the whole and placed upon the general order.

Also, pursuant to previous notice, asked and obtained leave to bring in a "Bill for the relief of Martin Kundig;" which was twice read and referred to the committee on ways and means.

Mr. Howard, from the committee of conference on the disagreement on the Senate bill "to provide for the foreclosing of mortgages by advertisement," made a report thereon; which, on motion, was laid upon the table.

The Chair announced the following message from the Senate, by their Secretary, Mr. Kellogg:

On motion of Mr. Bell,

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, with instructions to bring in a bill to prescribe and regulate the supply of books, stationery, and other articles necessary and proper, for the use of the several courts, offices and departments of this state, which may be a charge to the state.

The Chair announced as such committee, Messrs. Bell, Renwick, Bush, Howard and Sprague.

Mr. Stockton laid upon the table the following joint resolution:

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, That the board of internal improvement be instructed to erect in the city of Detroit, or its vicinity, a depot and car house to protect the cars from the weather when not in use.

Mr. Spencer offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Governor of this state be, and he is hereby authorized and requested to procure printed and distributed equally among the members of this Legislature, one hundred and sixty copies of the report that may be made to him by the select committee appointed by this House to investigate the affairs of the board of commissioners of internal improvement, as soon as practicable after the same may be made.

Mr. Hammond moved to lay the resolution upon the table, which did not prevail.

The question recurring upon the adoption of the resolution,

Mr. Bush moved to amend the resolution by inserting after the word "report," the words following, "both of the majority and minority, if two reports be made."

Mr. Hammond moved to amend the same by striking out "one hundred and sixty copies," and inserting in lieu thereof, "in the newspaper in which the laws of the state are published;" which was lost.

The question recurring upon the amendment offered by Mr. Bush,

Mr. Barbour moved to amend the amendment by inserting "three hundred," in lieu of "one hundred and sixty," which was adopted.

Several amendments being offered to said bill, the Chair decided it to be incompetent to amend bills upon their third reading, unless by general consent.

Mr. McReynolds appealed from the decision of the Chair.

The question being put, "shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?" the same was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Hammond moved to commit the bill to a select committee of three, with instructions to report a provision authorizing the supervisors elected on the first Monday of March, instant, in the city of Detroit, to act as supervisors of the township of Detroit, and to report the same this afternoon.

Mr. Champlin moved the following as a substitute for Mr. Hammond's motion:

That the bill be committed to a select committee of three, with instructions to incorporate a provision, so that a supervisor be elected in the city of Detroit, and that they be required to report the same back to the House this afternoon, and that it be made the special order for this afternoon."

The Chair decided that the question before the House was upon the substitute offered by Mr. Champlin.

Mr. McReynolds claimed that he was in possession of the floor at the time the Speaker entertained Mr. Champlin's motion, and appealed from the decision of the Chair.

And the question being, shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House, the same was decided in the affirmative, as follows:

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE.

Executive Office, March 20, 1840.

The Chair announced the following special message from the Executive, accompanied by the bill "to authorize the guardians of Ursula and Dorothy Cauchois, to convey certain real estate," which he returned without his signature:

To the House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN—I herewith return, for the further consideration of the Legislature, the bill entitled "An act to authorize the guardians of Ursula and Dorothy Cauchois, to convey certain real estate."

It has not been without much doubt, as to what course duty prescribed to me, that I have been able to form any opinion, satisfactory to myself, in this matter. My safest course I have thought was to submit the subject again to your review.

When the statute, commonly called the "statute of frauds," was first introduced into the English code, very serious doubts were entertained as to its proper operation in some particulars. In terms, it comprehended, as well contracts then existing, as those thereafter to be entered into. Although the legal omnipotency of parliament was not then brought into question by the judges, yet, with that cautious wisdom which is in general characteristic of the common law, they put such construction upon the act, restraining the generality of the terms used, as to limit its operation to contracts thereafter to be entered into. This was the course which natural justice indicated. Retrospective laws, so far as they act upon individuals alone, are generally unjust, and always dangerous; and there have not been found wanting, even among the great and learned men who have constituted the supreme court of the United States, those who have believed that the inhibition contained in our constitutions against passing ex post facto laws, was meant to apply as well to civil cases as to crimes.

The bill under consideration manifestly supposes that there existed no such contract between the decedent, (Agatha Cauchois,) and the person named, as could be enforced, as had valid force in the law; for if it had valid force, its performance could still be enforced by the judiciary, and this bill would, therefore, have been unnecessary and useless. This bill nevertheless, sets up a supposed agreement, (inoperative because, being by parole, the law considers it as no contract,) and with certain very judicious and well prepared guards, authorizes its future enforcement. By that enforcement, certain real estate, now the property of infant children is subject to be taken from them.

Viewing the matter in this light, it seems to me that the bill is obnoxious to several objections.

In the first place, I would respectfully suggest, that I have seen so much evil at different times, result from a practice of legislating for the exclusive benefit of particular persons,—or to meet the exigencies of a particular case,—that except where the state may be a party in interest, I hold it to be the most dangerous character always.

To prescribe general rules of future action applicable to all our citizens alike, seems to me to constitute the only safe and legitimate scope of action for the legislative power in all except in cases particularly effecting the fiscal or other operations of the state, unless in some extraordinary combination of circumstances. The case supposed in the bill under consideration does not seem to me to present those circumstances.

Secondly. The retro-active operation of this bill, by making that valid which the bill itself supposes to be ineffective and void, effects a change of the vested rights of infant children, incapable of protecting their own rights; it is, therefore, most certainly dangerous, if it were even free from constitutional objections.

It is true, that by the bill, effect is not intended to be given to its provisions, unless a judge of probate shall think that it would be for the benefit of the infant, that such void contract be enforced, and it is this cautious guard, that principally has led me to hesitate in my own course in this matter.

But if there be a defect in the general law of the land, applicable so all in like circumstances, I would respectfully submit, that it would accord better with safety and true policy, to alter the general law, and under proper restrictions, to authorize guardians of minors, by the direction, and under the control of the proper courts of probate, to enter into and execute such contracts as are here sought to be enforced.

The most objectionable features of the present bill would be thus avoided.

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE.

Be it further resolved, That the resolution passed by a majority of the House of Representatives on the 10th of March, 1840, by which Philemon Dickerson, Peter D. Vroom, Daniel B. Ryall, William R. Cooper and Joseph Kille, were admitted to take their seats in the Congress of the United States, as representatives from the state of New Jersey, was a violation of the constitution of the United States, because it virtually repealed the statutes of the state of New Jersey, made in pursuance of that constitution, and was also a violation of the pledge of Congress through its committee on elections, to the five persons having possession of the legal evidence of title to seats as representatives in Congress, from the state of New Jersey.

Be it further resolved, That the decision of a majority of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, in nullifying the laws of the state of New Jersey, and in giving seats as members of that Congress, to persons having no ascertained title to them, and also in refusing to hear what the opposing claimants had to say—in refusing to hear the testimony in possession of the committee on elections—in refusing to receive and hear read, the report of the minority of that committee, and in passing the resolution thus violating the Constitution and their plighted faith, under the power of the "previous question," which cuts off all debate, was an unparalleled and revolting outrage upon the Constitution of the United States, the laws of one of the sovereign states of this Union, and the rights of the great body of the people themselves.

Which resolution was adopted.

The Chair announced the following special message from the Executive:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

GENTLEMEN—Circumstances connected with the present condition of the Michigan militia, seem to me to render it expedient that a new appointment be made of a brigadier general of the fifteenth brigade, of the eighth division. A difficulty seems to have existed as to the respective claims of two gentlemen for the same office; both seem to have been commissioned for the same command, and by commissions issued within a short time of each other. Some irregularity and misapprehension seems to have existed relative to the matter, the consequences of which are very unfavorable to the character and efficiency of the militia, especially of that brigade. Under these circumstances I have supposed it expedient to vacate both commissions and to nominate to both branches of the Legislature in joint convention met, another person.

I have also supposed that the good of the service requires that new appointments be made of judge advocate general and quartermaster general.

If it be the pleasure of both branches of the Legislature to receive and act upon such nominations, I submit it to the consideration of the Legislature, whether it suit their convenience to receive those nominations at such time as they may appoint for receiving the nomination of a person to be acting commissioner of internal improvement.
